The insulation of the fabric keeps your feet much warmer than your cotton counterparts, polyester or bamboo, making them the perfect complement to your winter shoes. If you're afraid that wool socks are hard and scratched on your feet, don't be. Most companies use Merino wool in their designs. Merino is not only softer than regular wool, but is also known for its moisture absorption and odor-resistant properties, so it will keep your feet dry and smellless, even while working a sweat. In addition, the Merino wool is often mixed with other materials such as nylon and elastane to give the socks stretching and extra comfort. If you're looking for a couple of clothes while skiing, you should for a thinner and seamless option, so your heavy ski boots don't cut your circulation. Meanwhile, hikers might want to opt for a pair that features mesh suction cups for greater breathability.
